

Instructions

Due to the different forms of Micro-credentials, recognition procedures can vary by country and institutions making Micro-credentials recognition challenging to summarize. There are ongoing efforts to streamline and harmonize recognition procedures across Europe. Within the MicrocredX network we would like to increase the attractiveness and exchange of micro-credentials not only among project partners, but also boost and smooth the way of recognising micro-credentials among countries and different micro-credential providers. Efforts and joint work produced an Implementation framework, which consists of 7 Domains, one of them being Recognition. Please see the additional/attached document.

We would kindly ask you for feedback on the status quo regarding recognition and easing the way of the recognition processes by answering the following questions:

Key Issues in Recognition

1. Which recognition strategies is your university using (from the Domain 7)?

- Recognition of Prior Learning
- International Conventions (e.g., Lisbon Recognition Convention)

Inter Provider Credit Exchange Agreements (e.g., Erasmus Learning Agreements):

- Free electives
- Ad hoc recognition
- Automatic recognition

2. Are there recognition strategies that you use beyond the one mentioned in 1.?

- 3. Which recognition strategies are you expecting to use in your university for micro-credentials exchange?

- 4. What kind of recognition agreements do you use in your university for recognition? What is the legal basis for the agreements?

- 5. Which barriers do you expect for the points 1-3?

- 6. How do you overcome the barriers mentioned?

- 7. Anything you want to add?
